DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on February 21, 2006 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

3. Claims 1, 8-12, 15, 19, 26-30, 33, 36, 38-43, 46, 50, 52-56, 59 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kominami et al. (US 2003/0152088 A1, hereinafter "Kominami") for the same reasons given in the last Office action and repeated below.

Regarding claims 1, 19, 36, 38, 50, Kominami discloses a method for setting a programmable feature of a motor vehicle (vehicle 10) comprising:

providing an interactive site on a global computer network (vehicle preference manager website 52);

establishing a connection with the interactive site (via computer 50 and Internet connection; page 4, paragraph 53);

interactively setting a programmable feature of the motor vehicle (user selects preference settings for vehicle accessory devices using software downloaded via website 52; page 4, para. 53);

providing a transfer device having an input port and an output port (PDA 12 includes an input port (connection to PC 50; Fig. 2) and an output port (transceiver 18 of PDA 12 connects with transceiver 16 of vehicle 10; page 2, para. 36; page 4, para. 54);

transferring set-up data (PDA 12 receives the data from the website via computer 50; page 4, para. 53);

transferring the set-up data from the output port of the transfer device to the motor vehicle (PDA 12 transmits user preference data to the vehicle 50 via transceiver 18; page 4, para. 54).

Regarding claims 8, 26, 39, 52, preference data includes navigation system destination setting (page 5, para. 57, lines 11-12).

Regarding claim 9, 27, 40, 53, preference data includes a communication function (alarm, security, audio and display control setting; voice activation; page 5, para. 57).

Art Unit: 2643

Regarding claims 10, 28, 41, 54, preference data includes radio and TV station setting (page 5, para. 57, line 12).

Regarding claims 11, 29, 42, 55, preference data includes climate control (page 5, para. 57, line 8).

Regarding claims 12, 30, 43, 56, preference data includes user-assigned function (memory seat, memory mirror, adjustable steering column, etc.; page 5, para. 57).

Regarding claims 15, 33, 46, 59, preference data includes a display control setting (page 5, para. 57, line 11).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 5-6, 23-24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kominami in view of Elmers et al. (US 5,850,304) for the same reasons given in the last Office action and repeated below.

Kominami differs from claims 5-6, 23-24 in that it does not teach an optical sensor. However, Elmers teaches the well known use of an optical sensor (photodetector within controller 12 receives light pulses from a computer display 11, converts the optical data into bits which are then transmitted to another device; col. 5, lines 3-28) such that it would have been obvious to an artisan of ordinary skill to incorporate such use of an optical sensor, as taught by Elmers, within the transfer device of Kominami as another means of receiving and transmitting user preference data.

Response to Arguments

6. Applicant's arguments filed February 21, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that "Kominami may not properly be cited against the pending claims since the claims find support in Applicant's prior issued U.S. Patent No. 6,256,378." U.S. Patent No. 6,256,378 mentions automobile sound systems and automobile HVAC systems as being among possible categories of appliances (col. 3, lines 59+). However, it does not describe transferring the set-up data "to the motor vehicle" itself as recited claim 1. A "motor vehicle" is not the same as "automobile heating, ventilating and air conditioning (HVAC) systems" or "automobile sound systems." Moreover, claims 8, 26, 39 and 52 recite the programmable feature as comprising "a navigational function." This feature is clearly not supported by the disclosure of U.S. Patent No. 6,256,378.
